Iron Boiler Tubes, Lap Welded Tubing for

SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF
W. C. ALLISON'S
PATENT JOINT
Oil Well Tubing.

This Superior Tubing is furnished with heavy sockets, and is cut with a vanishing screw thread, corresponding exactly with the thread in the socket, so that when screwed up it has a bearing the whole length of the joint: and the absence of a deep thread on the tube at the end of the socket obviates the liability to break at that point from the vibration caused by the action of the pump.

Each length and socket is stamped with our trade mark, and is carefully tested before shipment with a hydraulic pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch.

Eastman, in July, 1867, and two to Edward Guillod, in May, 1868; said patents covering all Jars made of wrought iron and steel combined, and applied substantially in the manner represented in said patents and generally known as steel Jars.

Griffin's Patent WATER PACKER!

This is one of the most useful Patents for oil operators ever invented. It has several advantages over any other Seed Bag or water packer in use 1st. It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use as there is no waiting for seed to swell, and by its quick action the well is kept clean. 2d. It can never fasten tubing or casing in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily.

The Democratic Change of Base.

"THE IRRESISTIBLE MARCH OF EVENTS."
From the Missouri Republican, (Dem).

It is useless to disguise the manifest fact that the Democracy are not the Democracy of the recent past. The irresistible march of events and the philosophy of a new condition have compelled a change. As long as there seemed a possibility of maintaining the old order, that party made itself the champion of the old order; but even while it resisted the transformation, the transformation became complete; and the only question for Democrats to decide was whether they would recognize things as they are, or as they wanted them. Senator Morton's imputation made an instant and complete decision necessary, and that decision has been given. It is a proclamation that the Democracy sacrifice all desire for retaliation, all desire for punishment of usurpations acquiesced in by the people, and all design of restoring privileges to one that involves the withdrawal of rights from another. This is the plain language of the organs of Southern sentiment; and it is the language of all the leaders of Democratic opinion in the North and West. Even Mr. Vallandigham, of Ohio, recognizes the accomplished transformation, and in the Dayton platform endeavors to conform to it, though he commits the folly of casting a suspicion on the sincerity of his declarations by exempting reconstruction legislation from the immunity of which he accords to the Constitutional Amendments. The object of Mr. Vallandigham seems to have been to create an impression, and make himself the author and leader of a new Democratic policy.

VALLANDIGHAM'S OMNIBUS.
From the Toledo Commercial.

Mr. Vallandigham's new departure sets out with a declared determination to "agree to disagree," and since it does not make any difference how widely apart the views of those who stand upon his platform may be, of course everybody can join in this movement, and Vallandigham, of necessity, must be regarded as everybody's leader. In order to secure such a leader, a Republican should be willing to stand upon almost any platform. This modern Reformer is willing to yield his most cherished sentiments for the sake of making an arrangement whereby the people of this country may have it in their power to secure his services in some honorable and lucrative position. He is actually disposed to admit that we have had a war and that certain amendments have been made to the Constitution.

"THE SPECIOUS PRETEXT OF THE UNION."
From the Columbus (Ohio) Statesman (Dem.)

Mr. Vallandigham represents a large element in the Democratic party which has been credited with a desire to keep alive the issues of the war; but this was only true to a very limited extent, for the difference between Democrats on these "war issues" has been more fancied than real. It never amounted to a proposition for formal political action; but the consciousness of how grossly we had all been swindled and cheated by the Radicals, under the specious pretext of the Union, made us all somewhat intolerant and suspicious of any movement looking to acquiescence in the legalized fruits of their policy. We did not sufficiently distinguish between the way the thing was done and the thing itself. The present political situation of the country, however, invites the Democratic party to open doors and the largest liberality.

VALLANDIGHAM AS MICAWBER.
From the Albany Evening Journal.

There has been nothing quite so fine as Mr. Vallandigham's new departure, since the illustrious Mr. Micawber discharged his pecuniary obligations by giving a note of hand. Indeed, a closer resemblance exists between the two cases than would appear at the first blush. Mr. Vallandigham and his party are as bankrupt in character as Mr. Micawber was in purse. Like Mr. Micawber, they are diligently waiting for something to turn up. And, again like that remarkable financier, they treat a fresh promise as though it both wiped out the past and guaranteed the future. However self-satisfied Mr. Micawber may have been over this celebrated financial transaction, it never deceived the rest of the world. And it will be precisely the same with this Peter Funk, Jeremy Diddler performance of the Ohio Copperhead.

VALLANDIGHAM'S DEPARTURE.
From the Cleveland Herald.

After minutely searching through the eighteen resolutions, with a keen eye for salient points, the Republican reader cannot fail to be struck with the remarkable similarity between many of the new principles of the Democratic party and the well-established doctrines of the Republican party. On most of the views here set forth, if they are adopted at their State Convention, the Democrats will find it difficult to get up an issue with the Republicans. The impression resulting from a perusal of the resolutions is, either that the Democrats propose "stealing the livery of heaven to serve the devil in," or, if honest in their "new departure," that the surest way to secure the success of their newly adopted principles, is to vote the Republican ticket.

A HOUSE DIVIDED AGAINST ITSELF.
From the Chicago Tribune.

Vallandingham's move is an adroit one, but it has its weak points. It is in conflict with the feelings, wishes and hopes of the leading Democrats of at least fifteen of the States—these fifteen States having one-third of the electorial vote. It is equally in conflict with the life-long prejudices of a large section of the party in a majority of other States. Nevertheless, it is possible that this platform will be substantially affirmed in the next National Convention. It will, however, still lack the most important element of success, and that is the ability to satisfy the American people that, once in power, the Democratic party would honestly and faithfully carry out the programme. To be successful, the party must depend upon the support of Admiral Semmes, Toombs, Frank Blair, and every Rebel and Confederate politician in the country, including the Ku-Klux. Can a party thus constituted, thus led and officered, command the confidence of the people in a promise to uphold reconstruction, the civil and political equality of the blacks, and to execute XIVth and XVth Amendments of the Constitution?

Charles Dickens.

Mr. Fields opens his budget on Dickens in the Atlantic Monthly for June, devoting a couple of pages to the great novelist's first visit to Boston, in 1842, and giving four of his racy and inimitable private letters to the late Professor Felton, of Cambridge. The story of the Boston visit is told in this charming manner:

How well I recall the bleak winter evening in 1842, when I first saw the handsome, glowing face of the young man who was even then famous over half the globe. He came bounding into the Tremont House, fresh from the steamer that had brought him to our shores, and his cheery voice rang through the hall, as he gave a quick glance at the new scenes opening upon him in a strange land on first arriving at a Transatlantic hotel. "Here we are!" he shouted, as the lights burst upon the merry party just entering the house, and several gentlemen came forward to greet him. Ah, how happy and buoyant he was then! Young, handsome, almost worshipped for his genius, belted round by such troops of friends as rarely ever man had, coming to a new country to make new conquests of fame and honor—surely it was a sight long to be remembered, and never wholly to be forgotten. The splendor of his endowments and the personal interest he had won to himself called forth all the enthusiasm of old and young America, and I am glad to have been among the first to witness his arrival. You ask me what was his appearance as he ran, or rather flew up the steps of the hotel, and sprang into the hall. He seemed all on fire with curiosity, and alive as I never saw mortal before. From top to toe every fibre of his body was unrestrained and alert. What vigor, what keenness, what freshness of spirit possessed him! He laughed all over, and did not care who heard him! He seemed like the Emperor of cheerfulness on a cruise of pleasure, determined to conquer a realm or two of fun every hour of his overflowing existence. That night impressed itself on my memory for all time, so far as I am concerned with things sublunary. It was Dickens, the true "Boz," in flesh and blood, who stood before us at last, and with my companions, three or four lads of my own age, I determined to sit up late that night. None of us then, of course, had the honor of an acquaintance with the delightful stranger, and I little thought that I should afterwards come to know him in the beaten ways of friendship, and live with him day after day in years far distant; that I should ever be so near to him that he would reveal to me his joys and his sorrows, and thus that I should learn the story of his life from his own lips.

About midnight on that eventful landing, "Boz,"—everybody called him "Boz" in those days—having finished his supper, came down into the office of the hotel, and joining the young Earl of M——, his fellow-voyager, sallied out for a first look at Boston streets. It was a stinging night, and the moon was at the full. Every object stood out sharp and glittering, and "Boz," muffled up in a shaggy fur coat, ran over the shining frozen snow, wisely keeping the middle of the street for the most part. We boys followed cautiously behind, but near enough not to lose any of the fun. Of course the two gentlemen soon lost their way on emerging into Washington from Tremont street. Dickens kept up one continual shout of uproarious laughter as he went rapidly forward, reading the signs on the shops, and observing the "architecture" of the new country into which he had dropped as if from the clouds. When the two arrived opposite the "Old South Church" Dickens screamed. To this day, Jack, I could never tell why. Was it, think you, because of its fancied resemblance to St. Paul's or the Abbey? I declare to you the mystery of that shout is still a mystery to me! If bell-handles had been noses during that rollicking ramble, what a quantity of Boston features would have been disturbed that night! Dickens seemed quite unable to keep his fingers off the inviting knobs that protruded from the door as he went past, and he pulled them with such vigor that one actually came off in his hand. Up one street, down another, into alleys, through back yards, we saw the merry twain proceed. It was evident to us that they had not the remotest suspicion how they were ever to find their way back to the Tremont House. Not a watchman was discoverable, and we felt it would be reserved for us to guide them back to their lodgings. About one o'clock they approached us and asked their way to the hotel. The Earl put the question to our party, and Dickens spoke never a word, but stood by beating his hands and feet for warmth, the night having grown fiercely cold. Delighted with our luck, we volunteered to pilot the lost pair to the Tremont, and only wished we had miles to walk back with them, instead of a few blocks. When we got near the steps of the hotel, Dickens turned to one of our party, and asked: "What is the punishment in this city when a person is detected in the act of pulling off a door-bell handle?" With admirable promptness the lad looked him knowingly in the eye, and answered: "The heaviest possible, sir; he is instantly deprived of his Pickwick!" Little did Dickens dream when he addressed us that the "sweet wag" was known, and that we might have shouted: "D'ye think we didn't know ye? We knew ye as well as he that made ye!" Years afterwards, when I recalled the incidents of that night to Dickens, he remembered them all most clearly and vividly, for his was a brain that had no leaks in it.

The great event of Boz's first visit to Boston was the dinner of welcome tendered to him by the young men of the city. It is idle to attempt much talk about the banquet given on that Monday night in February, twenty-nine years ago. Papanti's Hall was the scene of that festivity. It was a glorious episode in all our lives, and whoever was not there has suffered a loss not easy to estimate. We younger members of that dinner party sat in the seventh heaven of happiness, and were translated into other spheres. Your uncle (accidentally of course) had a seat just in front of the honored guest; saw him take a pinch of snuff out of Washington Allston's box, and heard him joke with old President Quincy. Was there ever such a night before in our staid city? Did ever mortal preside with such felicitous success as did Mr. Quincy, Jr. How he went on with his delicious compliments to our guest! How he revelled in quotations from "Pickwick" and "Oliver Twist" and "The Curiosity Shop!" And how admirably he closed his speech of welcome, calling up the young author amid a perfect volley of applause! "Health, Happiness, and a Hearty Welcome to Charles Dickens." I can see and hear Mr. Quincy now, as he spoke the words. Were ever heard such cheers before? And when Dickens stood up at last to answer for himself, so fresh and so handsome, with his beautiful eyes moist with feeling, and his whole frame aglow with excitement, how we did hurrah, we young fellows! Trust me, it was a great night; and we must have made a mighty noise at our end of the table, for I remember frequent messages came down to us from the "chair," begging that we would hold up a little and moderate if possible the rapture of our applause.

A Question Answered.

BY MARK TWAIN.

"DISCARDED LOVER." I loved, and still love, the beautiful Edwitha Howard, and intended to marry her. Yet during my temporary absence at Benecia last week, alas! she married Jones. Is my happiness to be thus blasted for life? Have I no redress?"

Of course you have. All the law written and unwritten is on your side. The intention and not the act constitutes crime—in other words, constitutes the deed. If you call your bosom friend a fool and intend it for an insult—it is an insult—but if you do it playfully, and meaning no insult, it is no insult. If you discharge a pistol accidentally, and kill a man, you go free, for you have done no murder; but if you try to kill a man, and manifestly intend to kill him, but fail utterly to do it, the law still holds that the intention constitutes the crime, and you are guilty of murder. Ergo, if you had married Edwitha accidentally, and without really intending to do it, you would not be actually married to her at all, because the act of marriage could not be completed without the intention. And Ergo, in the strict spirit of the law, since you deliberately intended to marry Edwitha, and didn't do it, you are married to her all the same, because as I said before, the intention constitutes the crime. It is as clear as day that Edwitha is your wife, and your redress lies in taking a club and mutilating Jones with it as much as you can. Any man has a right to protect his wife from the advances of other men. But you have another alternative—you were married to Edwitha first, because of your deliberate intention, and now you can prosecute her for bigamy, in subsequently marrying Jones. But there is another phase in this complicated case: You intended to marry Edwitha, and consequently according to law, she is your wife—there is no getting around that; but she didn't marry you, and if she ever intended to marry you, you are not her husband, of course. Ergo, in marrying Jones she was guilty of bigamy, because she was the wife of another man at that time; which is very well as far as it goes—but then, don't you see, she had no other husband when she

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

FOR AUDITOR GENERAL,
DAVID STANTON, of Beaver Co.
FOR SURVEYOR GENERAL,
ROBERT B. BEATH, of Schuylkill.

Republican Primary Meetings.

In pursuance of a resolution of the County Committee, the primary meetings will be held on Friday June 2d, from 2 until 7 p. m. The Judge for one of the Clerks appointed by the Judges of each district, will meet at the Court House in Meadville, on the day following the primary meetings, at 1 o'clock, p. m., having certified returns and list of voters, and the person having the highest number of votes for any office, shall be declared the regular nominee of the Republican party. The Committee, at their meeting February 15th, passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Republican voters of Crawford county be requested to vote at the next primary meetings directly upon the question of the repeal of the present system of making nominations, the ballots to be labeled respectively "For Repeal" and "Against Repeal."

J. G. FOSTER,
Chairman County Committee.

Downfall of Paris.

The second act in the terrible French drama, with the apparently hopeless maze of a plot, has been finished, and finished most happily. The dream of the fierce socialists of the capital, who hoped to take advantage of the prostration and anarchy that followed the Prussian war, to realize their enthusiastic but impractical idea of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" is over. The declamation of the Commune, the stern and cruel actions of the terrorists, the bold nothings of the mob of the faubourgs are to be no more. Paris with all her mad and illogical aspirations has been for the first time in two centuries conquered by France. The government of the national assembly, elected by universal suffrage, representative of the six-sevenths of the French people who live out of Paris has entered and taken possession of the rebellious capital.

It is the greatest triumph of order over anarchy that ever took place on French soil. Hitherto the only way out of the rule of the mob was by means of a military dictator, who founded an empire or kingdom on the reaction and disgust that has followed the excesses of a revolution. But now it is a triumph of the people of France, through their legal representatives, over that foolish city population which would ignore the rule of the majority, and which assumed to rule over their fellow-citizens by the right of superior intelligence.

It only remains to consider what is likely to follow the downfall of Paris. Unfortunately there is such strong evidence of what is intended and such great probability of the success of the plans, that we may put forward a prediction with melancholy confidence. The efforts to bring about fusion of the great Orleanists and the legitimists have totally failed—and even if they had succeeded both parties have certainly lost strength both with the people and in the assembly since the capitulation of Paris. The elements of discord in M. Thier's government are so large and so active that it is hardly venturing much to predict its speedy dissolution after the defeat of the armed enemies of the country. Bonapartism on the other hand is gaining everywhere throughout the provinces, and probably a new election would show the ex-Emperor to be far less unpopular in France than he is supposed to be. Matters are working precisely as he would wish. The longer the present situation is prolonged the better for his prospects. The army and its officers are devoted to him, and the people themselves, however disgusted with his failure as a military leader, have a still longer account registered against the republic. It would not be surprising if, three months after the surrender of Paris to the army of Versailles, Napoleon III. were reinstated in that capital as the undisputed personal ruler of the Third Empire.

Law of Betting on Elections.

At the last general term of the Supreme Court in the Fourth Judicial Department, of New York, in the case of Woodbury against Morton, some interesting questions growing out of an election wager were decided. Plaintiff bet defendant $50 that Fenton would be elected Governor in 1866; defendant accepted the bet. Plaintiff at the time the bet was made, deposited his $50 with defendant, but, afterward, by agreement between them, the $100 was put in one Morrison's hands as stakeholder. Plaintiff won the bet; the stakeholder, instead of delivering the whole sum to plaintiff, gave defendant $40, and the balance was unaccounted for. Plaintiff therefore brought this action to recover $50 delivered by him to defendant at the time the bet was made. Held, that, under section nine of the revised statutes, page 614, at large, this action in maintainable. Defendant having received the money at the time of making the bet for an illegal purpose, the subsequent agreement to deposit the same with a stakeholder was also illegal, being made in furtherance of an illegal purpose. The party to the bet who receives the money from the other party should not be shielded from responsibility because he has put the money in the hands of a stakeholder.

The difficulty of obtaining a jury in the McFarland case, owing to the fact that every intelligent man had read the newspaper accounts of the tragedy, and had, therefore, formed an opinion, will be remembered. But in the Foster case, at New York, the difficulty is still greater, 50 jurors having been summoned in order to get twelve impanelled. This is owing, doubtless, to the fact that the guilt and depravity of the murderer are so obvious as to leave the reader of the newspapers no choice but to condemn the homicide as a brutal murder, supposing that the circumstances have been accurately narrated by the press. The only absolutely correct statements of the event are, of course, to be obtained in court during the trial. Intelligent citizens know this, and citizens, once honest and intelligent, who had read of the case in the newspapers, would be far better jurors than the boxful which the court has obtained under the method usually pursued.

Admission to the legal profession in New York has recently been subjected to more stringent regulations than formerly prevailed. By authority of the last Legislature, the Court of Appeals has just proposed a series of rules for admission to the bar, under which every applicant must have served a clerkship of three years in a regular attorney's office. A clerkship of two years, however, is only necessary when the student has besides attended a course of lectures for one year in a Law School. The applicant must also pass an examination. Hitherto the passing of an examination was the only requisite, without regard to the period of study.

Convicted of Murder.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 24.

In the case of Daniel Montgomery, on trial for the murder of his wife in November last, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. The defence was insanity.

THE WEATHER—PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS—POLITICS AND CANDIDATES.

MEADVILLE, May 23, 1871.

Editors Morning Herald:

The invoice of weather missent to this locality, and destined, I opine, for Alaska or Greenland, has happily been exhausted, and we are now luxuriating in the spring temperature to which we should have been treated a month ago. Jack Frost, who has "lingered in the lap of spring," with icicles in his hair, despoiling fruit and flower, seems fairly expelled, and I fondly hope will not make his appearance again until the October blasts are upon us. We are now in the full enjoyment of springtime—the happiest and most joyful season of the year. How redolent the atmosphere with sweet smells. How delightful the music of nature's songsters. But I am digressing, carried away by Nature and her bridal dress, forgetting that business, not pleasure, constitutes the largest portion of the attention, not only of your readers, but mankind generally.

Our halls of justice are happily closed for a season, Judge Lowry having concluded to suspend his Court until August, when he proposes to come down hot and heavy upon offenders, as well as to give even handed justice to the innocent. We hope he may never imitate the left-handed representation that wields the sword over his bench in the court room.

In imitation of your citizens, we are engaged in boring for oil, or something else within our city limits. We have not "struck oil" yet, but have plenty of gas. The well is now down nearly 700 feet, still the oily rock has not yet been found. But those who know say that sufficient gas has been obtained to propel eight or ten twelve-horse power engines. What else may be developed in the thousand feet to be bored your deponent saith not.

Business is said to be dull, but our city gives token of improvement in the erection of several fine, large and expensive buildings, for one of which the foundation is just laying by A. B. Richmond, on Chestnut street—a block of four store rooms on the first floor, offices on the second, and large hall for public use.

Politics and candidates are beginning to receive some attention. Your candidate for Assembly, Mr. Minor, was here a few days ago, and made a very favorable impression. I think he will receive a flattering vote. Meadville has no candidate for the position, and we do not feel at all jealous of Titusville, despite the efforts made at times by interested parties to place us in a hostile position toward each other.

The only candidates emanating, I believe, from the seat of justice, are asking for the County Treasurship. This is a very important position, and should not be placed in the hands of an irresponsible or incompetent person, let his other pretensions be what they may. By-the-by, a correspondent of yours, ("LOOKER ON") has singularly enough, in your issue of the 18th ult., overlooked one of the most substantial names brought out for the position. I allude to that of Hiram Betts. I say it is very singular, if not significant, that such an omission should be made by "Looker on," for if he had "looked" at all into the approaching canvass he would have been satisfied that Mr Betts would poll a large majority of the vote in this locality. I would not be uncharitable enough to suggest that this fact caused the omission! And that "Looker on" is more interested in the Treasurership than in anything else he dilates upon! Be this as it may, I trust the people will "look" well to the antecedents—morally as well as politically—of the person whom they vote for to fill so important a place as that of Treasurer.

The Republican party here are well satisfied with the nominations made by the State Convention and the resolutions adopted. I hope the county nominations to be made on the 24 of June, will meet with like favor.

If you should consider my thoughts and suggestions worthy a place in your columns, I may be encouraged to drop you a letter again. OCCASIONAL.

East Indian Oil Fields a Failure

Ever since the discovery of petroleum in Western Pennsylvania, efforts have been made in various parts of the world to develope territory having oleaginous indications, most of which have been absolute failures. About two years ago Mr. Benjamin Smith Lyman, Mining Engineer, of the Public Works Department, of India, received orders to make a geological survey and examination of the oil springs in India, and has recently made his report. The Government have become so discouraged by this report, that they have abandonded the intention of allowing him to prosecute his investigations any further. Notwithstanding that the best scientific and engineering skill, accompanied by the services of practical oil drillers, have been combined for the purpose of practically testing this territory at a variety of points, having the best indications, all their efforts have failed to obtain the petroleum in quantities sufficiently abundant to defray the cost of transportation. In fact, Mr. Lyman is of the opinion that although oil may exist there, and further efforts may possibly prove successful, still the chances in favor of a profitable result, are "only about one in a thousand million."

Mr. Lyman goes into an elaborate description of the geological structure of the surrounding country, and of "the lay of the land," which would only be interesting, if the oil could have been procured there in paying quantities. The following is an extract describing the locality of the various springs and the surface indications:

"The northernmost oil spring is the one near Rutta Ooor, 11 miles north by east of Rawul Pindee; the next so-called oil spring is in the first Cheerpur Mountain, near Runneeal, and eight miles southwest of Pindee; then comes the oil spring in the Seel river at the mouth of the Bussala near Moorut, and 10 and a-half miles southwest by west of Pindee; then the Loondeegar asphalte and oil, also near Moorut, and 14 miles southwest of Pindee; the Gunda oil wells, twenty-three miles west of Pindee; the Chhurrut old oil boring at Chhurrut village, and 28 miles west of Pindee; the Birarec old oil well near Chhurrut, and 28½ miles west of Pindee; the Jafir old oil boring near near Jafir, and 29 miles west of Pindee; the Dulla asphalte between Boota and Buttiol, and 38½ miles west of Pindee; the Punnoba oil springs at Punnoba (Kohat District) near Shekh Khan, 25 miles east of Kohat, and 67 miles west of Pindee; the Alluggud asphalte and rock tar, on the Alluggud brook (Bunnoo District), 10½ miles south of Eesa Khel, and 124 miles southwest by west of Pindee; the Chhotta Kutta oil springs near Juba (Bunnoo District), 10 miles southeast of Kalabagh, and fifty-nine miles southwest by west of Pindee; the Burra Kutta oil springs, half a mile southeast of the last; the Sadeealee rock tar near Nurn (Jhelum District), and 90 miles southeast of Pindee; the Chinnoor rock tar near Murdowal (Shahpoor District), and 83 miles southwest of Pindee; the Hungooch rock tar near Dhuddow and Murkoom (Shahpoor District), and 81 miles southwest by south of Pindee; and the Dooma rock tar near Kubbukkee (Shahpoor District), and 77 miles southwest by south of Pindee."

NEW YORK, May 24.

A special to the World, dated St. Denis, 24th, says: After a brief lull the fighting in Paris recommenced yesterday, continuing all night. The troops of Generals Douai and Vinnery surrounded the Tuilleries, Louvre and Place Vendome, and desperate fighting followed, the Federals disputing every inch of ground. At daylight the position still remained in the hands of the Federals. The Tuilleries was seriously damaged by shells. A combined assault of all the troops is now going on.

VERSAILLES, May 24—Morning.

The government troops yesterday dislodged the Federals from the Faubourg St. Germaine and elsewhere, and are to-day continuing their victorious march. It is thought the Federals will attempt to escape towards Belleville and Pantin. Crowds of repulsive-looking men, destitute of uniforms and in rags, were taken prisoners. Great fires are raging in Paris but it is hoped the galleries of the Louvre may be saved.

The Times to-day expresses the opinion that the settlement of the question of the Alabama Claims is honorable to England, and that the object of both governments is realized. Though the treaty expresses no perfect compromises, it is still acceptable for the sake of peace, and both countries have already practically ratified the result of the Commission.

Berlin journals of the 21st state General Fabric recently demanded of the Paris Commune the surrender of the National Guards implicated in the attack upon the hotel of Mr. Washburne, American Minister. Grosset replied that Commune had ordered the Embassy to be held sacred, and that when they heard that the establishment had been attacked they ordered the court martial of the offenders, but the culprits fled in dismay and could not be found. Commune could only express sorrow and indignation at the deed which they were unable to prevent.

ST. DENIS, May 24—Evening.

This has been a terrible day for Paris. The city is burning in many places, and the destruction of a great part of the central and eastern districts seems inevitable. The Communists still hold the district between the Place Vendome, the Tuilleries and Belleville. The troops are mowed down by the fire from windows, barricades and mitrailleuses, but steadily gain ground. The slaughter is awful.

James Vila, a distinguished merchant of this city, died yesterday, aged 83. He leaves no immediate descendants, and his property goes to his nephew and his neice.

The report that Samuel Williston, a well known manufacturer of East Hampton, Mass., offers Amherst College $300,000 on condition that the name be changed to Williston University, is officially denied.

The fund of $23,310, realized over expenses at the recent French fair here, has been placed on interest until careful consideration shall determine the best method of distributing among the suffering women and children of France.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate—Extra Session.

WASHINGTON, May 24.

The presiding officer (Anthony) presented the memorial of Flanagan, Bradley, Clark & Co., John Flanagan, Henry Woodruff, for himself, as trustee for the undersigned, Courtland, Palmer and John Donaldson, trustee of the Pultney National Bank, by Henry Woodruff, attorney, stating they have just claims to the amount of over a quarter of a million of dollars against the government of Venzuela, for losses occasioned by its failure to perform its obligations and duties under certain grants relating to the construction of the railroad of the East, from Caracas to Potare, and its wrongful and arbitrary acts in seizing by military force materials, tools and equipments connected with the construction of the road, etc. They therefore ask the Senate to give some one of its committees power to send for persons and papers and make an examination into matters connected with the proceedings and delinquencies of the mixed commission, and make a report thereon, and in the meantime that such proper action be taken as will cause said money to remain undisturbed to the holders of said certificates payable to bearer until such time as the committee may make report thereon, to the end that corruption may be deprived of its reward and justice be done. The memorial was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The Senate then went into executive session on the treaty.

Another Mill Broken Up.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., May 24

The Collins-Edwards prize fight, which was to have taken place this morning, at Cold Spring, was prevented by the police. The stakes were pitched and both men appeared at the scratch and the battle was about to commence, when a New York police boat with a hundred picked officers hove in sight. The fight was forgotten and every one looked to his own safety. Very soon the alarm became general and there was not a man to be seen. Every effort was made to arrest the principals, but without success, they having been spirited away. Sergeant O'Brien, however, succeeded in arresting Donney Harris and Mike Smith, whom he discovered in a house. Having secured stakes and ropes, and having ascertained that Collins and Edwards had escaped into an adjoining county, they returned to the city. It is expected the fight will come off at some place in this vicinity to-morrow. Donney Harris and Smith, who were captured, were brought up before Judge Dowling, and committed to the city prison in default of one thousand dollars bail. The Judge said the day of prize fighting was over, and public exhibitions are illegal, and hereafter the announcement of sparring exhibitions to come off in this city will be sufficient evidence to break into the premises by force and arrest the offenders.

Presbyterian Synod.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24

At the morning session of the Reformed Presbyterian Synod, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That in furtherance of the great work to home missions, providentially develved upon the synod, the church will put forth every effort during the year to raise a fund of $10,000, to be placed at the disposal of the Domestic Board of Missions of the General Synod, to be designated as sustenation funds of the Home Field.

Methods of proceeding necessary to raise the fund were then discussed. A motion was made that a special committee of three be appointed to take charge of the sustenation fund. This was agreed to, when the Synod adjourned till this afternoon.

Sixty Cars Burned.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

Money and Stock Market.

NEW YORK, May 24

Gold has been weak in consequence of lower rates for sterling: opened at 111⅜, declined to 111⅜, and closed at 111¼@111⅜.

Loans were made at from 1 to 2 per cent.

Clearances $39,000,000.

Exports to-day, $350,000.

Government bonds were dull and without decided change in prices. The offerings at the Sub-Treasury were $531,800 at from 111 10-100 to 111 65-100. The awards were $2,00,000 at from 111 10-100 to 111 25-100. Subscriptions to the new loan, $114,000.

Stocks opened feverish and prices were irregular, until after second call, when the whole list improved, especially Rock Island, which was bought largely by the cliques. Late in the day Northwesterns took a sudden upward turn, and transactions were large in anticipation of a dividend of 5 per cent. on both. Reading reached the highest point of the season. It is thought by good judges that the different cliques will bid the market up 1 or 2 per cent. higher when there will be another smash. The market is beginning to assume the appearance of a Brokers market. At the close stocks were buoyant.

The money market continues to work with extreme ease, 3 per cent. being the ruling rate.

Southern state bonds are beginning to attract more attention, and prices are gradually advancing. The market to-day was very firm for everything on the list.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Household Tonic.—The efficacy of Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters as a specific for recruiting the enfeebled body and cheering the desponding mind has passed into a proverb. In the United States, where this marvelous tonic has borne down all opposition and eclipsed all rivalry, the demand for it has annually increased in a heavier and heavier ratio for years, until at last, the regular sales of this preparation exceeds those of all other stomachics combined. Eminent members of the medical profession and hospital surgeons without number, have candidly admitted that the pharmacopœia of the faculty contains no prescription that produces such beneficial effects in dyspepsia, general debility and nervous diseases, as Hostetter's Bitters. To use the language of a venerable physician of New York, "The bitters are the purest stimulant and the safest tonic we have." But the uses of the great vegetable antidote are much more comprehensive than such praise would imply. As a preparatory antidote to epidemic diseases, a genial stimulant, a promoter of constitutional vigor, an appetizer, a stomachic, and a remedy for nervous debility, no medicinal preparation has ever attained the reputation of Hostetter's Bitters. It is the household tonic of the American people, and in all human probability will be so for centuries to come. The magnates of science recognize its merits; and that it is emphatically the medicine of the masses, is proved by its vast and ever increasing sales.

Blasting in Oil Wells.

The failures in obtaining satisfactory results in oil wells, undoubtedly arise from imperfect explosion, and this is especially the case with Nitro-Glycerine. Parties who desire a complete explosion of this material, must themselves insist on a perfect exploder being used, otherwise their money and time is utterly wasted. Remember the catridge may be blown to pieces and rent open without effecting the explosion of the Nitro-Glycerine it contains. It is very seldom that more than one-third of the powder, or "combination," are ever exploded, and it is on this account, that when pure Nitro-Glycerine is used, if part has been exploded, the remainder must explode, that has caused such effective results in oil wells. Over 75 per cent. of the torpedoes put in by the undersigned in 1868 and 1869 recovered the wells to their highest yield.

MOWBRAY'S NITRO-GLYCERINE.—The Tri Nitro-Glycerine manufactured by the Mowbray process is safer to handle, has 30 per cent. more explosive force, and is a more stable compound than can be made by the Nobel process. It is chemically pure, perfectly safe, warranted less liable to accident than powder in blasting, and is so certified by B. D. Frost, Chief Engineer of the Hoosac Tunnel. For three years we have manufactured thousands of pounds, and teamed it over the roughest roads in Massachusetts, Vermont, Maine, Connecticut and New York, in all seasons, without the slightest accident. Saves 50 per cent. in cost of rock blasting, seven-eights of the drilling, and expedites the work so that the removal of rock is the unit of progress. Proved to have double the force of Dualin, Dynamite, or any of the mixtures of inert matter with inferior nitro-glycerines.

ELECTRIC FUSE EXPLODERS.

The result of three years' experiments, perfectly safe, require an actual spark to explode them—atmospheric electricity, friction of wire do not affect these Electric Fuse Exploders. The only fuse with wires insulated in pure gutta percha—guaranteed "sure fire" every time.

FUSE GUTTA PERCHA INSULATED WIRE.

The adulteration of gutta percha in insulated wire, intended for blasting purposes, is a crime, because it risks the miners' lives, and worse, a blunder—because it wastes valuable time by causing miss fires.

Insulated Wire, warranted, made of the pure gum, without admixture. Address

D., 1871, at 12 o'clock noon.

Viz: All that certain tract of land now known as the "Cornplanter Tract," situate in Cornplanter Township, Venango county, State of Pennsylvania, bounded and described as follows

Beginning at a white oak, the westerly corner, thence by land of Hamilton McClintock, (now McClintock Oil Company) north 89¾ degrees, east 173 3-10 perches to a post; thence south fifteen degrees east 110 8-10 perches to a white oak; thence east 109 5-10 perches to a hickory; thence south 57 perches to a post; thence by land of Thomas Anderson south 50 degrees, west 96 perches to a post; thence north 56¾ degrees west 332 perches to a post; thence north 42 degrees east 56 perches to a white oak, the place of beginning, containing 220 acres, more or less, and being the same land now owned by the "Cornplanter Oil Company." The sale will be made subject to any and all existing leases of any part of the said premises of which the following is believed to be a correct list:

Lease to F. W. Andrews, covering about 55 acres more or less.

Leases to John Munhall and others, covering about 14 acres more or less.

Lease to H. M. Good and others, covering about 2 acres more or less.

Lease to Mechling, Morse and Sutton, covering about 2 acres more or less.

Lease to Mars & Whitcomb, covering about 1 acre more or less.

Lease to Wm. Leckey and others, covering about 3 acres more or less.

Lease to Tarbell & Hess, covering about 5 acres more or less.

Lease to Charles V. Whitcomb and others, covering about 1 acres more or less.

All existing leases provide for a royalty of 25 per cent. of the product to be paid to the land interest, and in some cases an increased percentage, should wells be found to yield more than 15 barrels per day.

Also, all the following named personal property, viz: One iron tank of about 6,500 barrels capacity. Two iron tanks of about 200 barrels each. One steam suction and force pump, used for forcing water from the creek to the high portions of the tract for the supply of engines, and for collecting oil from the various wells (through underground pipes) and delivering the same in tank, near railroad for shipment.

Nine steam engines and 5 boilers; ¾ of engine and boiler from 10 to 15 horse power; ⅜ of 890 feet of 2 inch tubing and sucker rods; ⅜ of 216 feet of 5⅜ inch casing; 3,100 feet tubing in wells; 825 feet 3 and 3¼ inch casing in wells; 160 feet 5⅜ inch casing in wells; 289 feet 5⅜ inch casing not in wells.

About 1,060 feet 2⅜ inch tubing used for oil and water pipe; about 7,000 feet 2 inch tubing used for oil and water pipe; about 300 feet 1½ inch pipe used for steam and gas; about 375 feet 2½ inch tubing not in wells.

The personal property is in good working order and most of the engines and boilers are nearly new. The Oil Creek & Allegheny R. R. passes through the tract; The producing wells on the property are connected by pipe lines with one central iron tank, from which point the oil is thrown by steam pump into the large iron tank near and above the railroad track, where it can be readily loaded on the cars.

The land interest is in receipt of about 12 barrels of oil per day, 6 barrels of which are from wells operated by the company, and 6 received as royalty from leases.

There are eight small tenant houses, blacksmith shop, cooper shop, &c., carpenter shop, stable, &c., upon the tract, and a lot of blacksmith and carpenter tools. The whole real estate and personal property will be sold together, thus offering a rare opportunity to those desiring to control a large tract of land, with first class facilities for developments, as fully 100 acres of the property remains to be tested.

Any additional information can be had by addressing the office of the "Cornplanter Oil Company," No. 524 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

By direction of the stockholders and order of the board.

SLATE ROOFING

In All Its Branches.

The subscriber respectfully invites the serious attention of Architects, Builders, and property owners in general to the many advantages realized by slate covering in preference of any other for the following reasons, to wit:

A slate roof will last for ages when properly put on, looks beautiful, is fire and water proof, and resists the corroding effects of steam, gas and acids, and, if injured by accident, is easily and cheaply repaired. A slate roof is painted by nature's own hand, immutable in color, and impervious to the elements. It may be removed at any remote period, again put on, and be as good as new, thus requiring neither paint brush nor solder to preserve it, while all other roofs if removed, are worthless, and lastly, it's the cheapest and very best ever put on. Leaky shingle roofs may be covered with slate without removing the shingles at little extra cost and make a good job. All jobs warranted tight. The best quality of slate on hand. Public Meeting

At Council room this evening at 8 o'clock, to appoint a committee on pavements.

A Committee to Examine and Report on Street Pavements.

At a meeting of the Council last evening, a committee was appointed to examine and report upon the subject of street pavements. The committee are Messrs. J. A. Cadwallader, John C Bryan, John Lowry and S. J. Myers. The committee have authority to visit different cities and make a personal inspection of the various pavements, and report upon their relative merits.

The Council request that a citizens' meeting be held at the Council room this evening, to act in conjunction with the above committee in making this investigation.

The meeting will be held at the Council room this evening at 8 o'clock.

The committee selected by the Main street property holders last evening, is as good a committee as could have been chosen. We hope they will also be chosen by the citizens' meeting, to-night, and be thus enabled to extend their observations, and not be restricted to the examination of a single pavement, but in conjunction with the Council committee make a thorough investigation and report accordingly.

WOODEN PAVEMENT.—A meeting of Main street property-holders was held at the Col. Drake engine house last evening, to discuss the subject of street pavements. M. N. Allen was called to the chair, and H. B. Ostrom appointed Secretary. It was stated that J. A. Bell, agent for the Wyckoff pavement, had offered to pay the expenses of a committee of three to visit Elmira and Williamsport, and examine that pavement. On motion David Emery, S. H. Carpenter and Henry Hinkley were appointed such committee.

After some discussion an invitation was extended to representatives of other pavements. Col. Roberts spoke of his own pavement. Dr. Roberts recommended the Bushnell pavement, and Dr. Filbert, of Philadelphia, presented the Miller pavement.

Dr. Filbert offered to pay the expenses of the same committee to visit Philadelphia and other eastern cities, and examine and report upon all pavements.

The question was subsequently raised whether the committee who had been appointed should report upon any other pavement than the Wyckoff, but there being some objection to this, no motion to that effect was offered.

A large number of residents on Main street recently presented a petition to the Council in favor of the Wyckoff pavement, but last evening a counter petition was presented from a number of the same property holders, asking a suspension of action for the present.

READ Sherman's advertisement of real estate before you lay down this paper.

AN UNPRECEDENTED OUTRAGE.—When the 8:35 train from Corry last night was passing Miller's crossing, a short distance above Spartansburg, a heavy club was hurled through a window of one of the passenger cars, with serious effect. Mr. J. H. Flagler, his wife and daughter occupied the seat next to the window, and the little girl, who was sitting upon her father's knee, was struck by the missile and knocked to the floor, and her eyes filled with the broken glass. Mr. Flagler also received a severe blow upon the side of his face, inflicting a wound and drawing blood. Mrs. Flagler fortunately escaped without injury. The passengers were of course greatly excited at the outrage, and when the train reached Spartansburg a dispatch was sent to the Chief of Police of Corry to send officers to Miller crossing, and if possible trace out the scoundrel. A liberal reward will be paid for his detection.

WHO FIRED THAT PISTOL CANE?—About five o'clock yesterday, a shot was fired from the rear of a building directly opposite Fowler's alley on Pine street, and in the rear of the American Hotel. The ball passed through a French plate glass window in front of the building, and thence up the alley, penetrating the right arm coat-sleeve of Charley Johnson, a colored man who works at the Bush House, and finally striking the side lamp of a carriage, standing at the end of the alley, breaking the glass of the lamp. George Merrit, who works in Fowler's stable, was standing near the front part of the carriage at the time, and the ball passed within a few inches of his head. The shot is supposed to have come from a pistol cane. Only a few days ago, a shot was fired into Crittenden's old liquor store from a similar instrument.

RUNAWAY.—A double team attached to a gravel wagon, the property of Mr. E. T. Wakefield, and driven by his son, a lad about 14 years of age, took fright about six o'clock yesterday afternoon, from the blowing of a steam whistle and ran away. The lad was driving leisurely up Franklin street, and had come to a point opposite Bryan, Dillingham & Co.'s, when he lost all control of the animals, and as they pushed furiously up the street, he jumped from the wagon and luckily escaped serious injury. The horses were stopped in the vicinity of Main street, without doing any damage.

QUITE a crowd gathered on Washington street last night to listen to the delightful strains of music which came from the banqueting hall of the C. C.'s, and pick up the corks and crumbs that came through the open windows.

The Harley Banquet.

Ever since the visit of the Commercial Club of this city to New York, in January last, upon which occasion it was made the recipient of numerous complimentary attentions from its first and only President, Henry Harley, which were all eclipsed in the grand banquet tendered by that officer to the Club at the Hoffman House, there has existed on the part of those who participated in that re-union, a desire to return fully, if possible, at least to the extent of the resources of the oil regions, the kindness and elegant complimentary entertainments of that trip, and last evening, as per invitations issued a few days since, the members of the Commercial Club, and such invited guests as the President chose to bring with him, assembled at the Parshall House, at an early hour, where a banquet had been prepared, and after which the festivities of the evening were to culminate, in the presentation of an elegant solid silver punch bowl to President Harley from the members of the Club.

At precisely seven o'clock the invited guests began to assemble and shortly after proceeded to the banquet hall to the inspiring strains of Mehl's Buffalo Band.

THE BANQUET ROOM

Upon entering the room where the banquet was spread, a scene of elegance opened upon the guests which prepared as they doubtless were in a measure for unusual attractions, far exceeded their highest expectations, and which also proved a most delightful surprise to President Harley and those accompanying him, who were personally familiar with the costly and recherche dejeuners of the metropolis. Two tables extended the entire length of the room, filled with tempting specimens of fruit and elaborate confectionery, gotten up in style peculiarly elegant, and each displaying the highest style of the confectioner's art. The ornamental pieces were numerous, and displayed unusual taste and skill in their construction, and consisted of pyramids of pastry, confectionery and fruits ornamented with natural flowers. Besides these there were mammoth bequets of choice flowers surmounted with banners and illuminated mottoes, in the centre, while before the seat of each guest was placed smaller bequets in silver receivers, from which depended white silken banners bearing the monogram of the club in gold. The walls were festooned with banners, flowers and other decorations, while to the rear of the smaller table at which President Harley presided, was a large banner with ultra marine border, in the center of which was the mammoth scarlet monogram of the club. The number of seats occupied was about seventy-five, though others had been provided for members and guests who were prevented from attending. The end of the dining-room opposite the President and subordinate officers of the club was occupied by the band, which discoursed operatic and the favorite airs of the day, during the serving of the repast which occupied about one hour and a half. The following bill of fare was amply discussed by those present, and much good cheer and interchange of compliments and congratulations followed:

MENU.

Little neck clams; Chablis.
SOUPS—Green turtle, Consomme, Commercial Club sherry.
FISH—Boiled Kennebec salmon, lobster sauce; baked sea bass port wine sauce; Liebfraumilch.
ENTREES—Soft shell crabs, with fine herbs; sweet bread larded, with spinach; broiled spring chicken, a la maitre d'hotel; lamb chops en papillotes; fillet of beef, with mushrooms; croquettes of rice; Chateau Margaux.
ROAST—Ribs of beef; lamb, mint sauce; saddle of South Down mutton, currant jelly; spring chicken, mushroom sauce; Westphalia ham, champagne sauce; veal; Clede Vougeot.
COLD DISHES—Boned turkey in jelly, aspic of oysters, pyramid of buffalo tongues, chicken salad, lobster salad, beef a la mode, decorated; Mumm's Dry Verzenay; Piper Heidsick.
VEGETABLES—New potatoes, green peas, tomatoes; new beets; green corn; string beans.
ORNAMENTAL PIECES—Boquets of natural flowers, imperial charlotte russe, vanilla cream, candied fruits ornaments, imperial meringue basket, national pound cake, pyramid of macaroons, fruit cake decorated with flowers.
PUDDING AND PASTRY—English plum pudding, brandy sauce; green apple pie, fruit cake, pound cake, maccaroons, green peach pie, fancy cake, French kisses; custard pie, cocoanut pie.
DESSERT—Vanilla and chocolate ice creams, raspberry ice, champagne jelly, almonds, raisins, apples, oranges, bananas, figs, grapes, strawberries and cream, Stilton cheese, coffee, mocha.

After doing justice to the array of tempting delicacies and choice dishes which had been prepared entirely by the Parshall House cuisine, and which fully equalled the best attempts of Delmonico, Taylor, and other celebrated metropolitan caterers to the public appetite, preparations for toasts and exercises of a more convivial nature began, after which the following expressions of regret were read by Hon. F. W. Ames, who presided at the banquet:

NEW YORK, May 24, 1871.

Henry Harley, President Com'l Club:

MY DEAR HARRY: I'm more than half inclined to curse my luck to-day, you jolly sinners. You know I am not at all averse to social cheer and little dinners, but Erie's going up, and business matters swarm about me, so all the bliss of brimming cup and festive board must pass without me. But please remember me to all, seize a goblet in your talons, and listen as I call by wire, this toast, "Here's health and endless gallons of oil."

Yours, very truly,
JAMES FISK, JR.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 22.

Commercial Club, Titusville, Pa.:

GENTLEMEN: I sincerely regret that pressing business engagements will not permit my accepting your invitation for the 24th inst. I recognize in this high compliment to Mr. Harley, a true appreciation of well earned merit. May the social and business relation between Henry Harley and the Commercial Club last forever. G. C. GUNTHER.

NEW YORK, May 24.

Commercial Club:

O. H. P. Archer sends his greetings to Henry Harley, regretting his inability to be present at the entertainment given in his honor. He unites in spirit with friends assembled on the occasion, in wishing him health, happiness and prosperity.

At this juncture the elegant rosewood case containing the testimonial of the Club to its President was brought forward, the folding-doors opened, and from its damask-colored silken case was lifted the pride of the Club, the cynosure of all eyes.

THE SILVER BOWL.

The bowl is manufactured of sterling silver coin and weighs 206 ounces. The style is unlike that of any other punch bowl, it being urn-shaped above the pedestal to afford space for the symbolic decorations. The height is fifteen inches, the interior diameter sixteen inches, the diameter to extremities of handles twenty-four inches, and the diameter at base fourteen inches. It is symmetrically shaped, gold lined and the exterior richly ornamented. A beveled border one and a quarter inches in width encircles the top, on which is embossed a Grecian wreath. From either side project, even with the surface, massive etruscan handles of beautiful workmanship. There are two planes four inches broad, which form the bases of two complete "well rigs," one illustrating the modus operandi of drilling, and the other of pumping oil. In the back ground are the oil tanks, barrels, and even the driller is discovered sitting on his stool with temper screw in hand, in the attitude of preparation. The derricks are but three inches high, and the remaining paraphernalia is regulated to this proportion, so that in its minutest details it is a perfect emblematic representation. The bowl is supported upon a dead or frosted silver base, representing a grassy hill sloping to a common plane, upon which are erected wood and iron tanks, and a filling rack, representing a pump station for the "pipe line" which descends the hill, thus illustrating an enterprise of which Mr. Harley was the pioneer on Oil Creek, and whose individual enterprise rendered it a great financial success. Fronting the "rack" is a railroad track, occupied by a train of three silver cars, so perfect in their construction, that if steam were applied they would dash off with a full cargo. Adjoining the tanks is a very striking representation of Miller Farm Station, and the office of the Allegheny Transportation Company. The base is supported by six feet, elegantly carved in pure Grecian style, and as a whole, in its minutest details, the workmanship is of a very superior cast.

On the front of the bowl is inscribed in magnificent text:

"Presented to Henry Harley, by the Commercial Club, Titusville, May 24th, 1871."

And on the reverse is the Club monogram, double C. The ladle is of solid silver and is made to represent an oil barrel at the base, the handle consisting of sections of pipe line or tubing, ornamented with gold and silver stop cocks near the center.

The designs for this elegant testimonial were executed by our fellow townsman, Col. E. L. Pitcher, who spent a month's time in superintending the work. We have not the name of the engraver, but the bowl is from the manufactory of Wood & Hughes, 102 Fulton street, New York. The labor occupied about two months, and is pronounced by the best artists in the country a very superior piece of workmanship.

The presentation speech was made by F. W. Ames as follows:

THE PRESENTATION.

Mr. Harley—This social reunion and banquet would lose their truest significance if unmarked by some appropriate testimonial of our regard for the worthy President of the Commercial Club. And it devolves upon myself as temporary chairman to express a few words of courtesy and congratulation which this occasion inspires, and to tender for your acceptance this simple token of our affectionate esteem.

I find it a pleasant duty, for whatever degree of merit or success attaches to our congenial organization, is due in a great measure to the inspiration of its founder—its first and only President, and its unwavering friend and advocate, Henry Harley.

I may further say, that apart from the pleasant social relations created and sustained through this organization, every member of the club who appreciates the sterling qualities so eminently displayed in our President, must have felt a personal interest and gratification in his prosperous business career.

The thrift and energy which have characterized all his undertakings, coupled with the public spirit and liberality which have been manifest on all proper occasions, have challenged our admiration and secured our lasting esteem.

We have accordingly chosen this occasion, Mr. Harley, for presenting you some material evidence of the friendly attachment which I have endeavored to express. And in casting about for such a testimonial as would best illustrate the spirit which suggested and commemorate the occasion which gives it birth, your friends have selected this symbolic token of the good cheer which has characterized this reunion and in which we heartily pledge you to-night—the silver bowl.

The artist has ingeniously depicted upon it in miniature, scenes and incidents which must be still familiar to your recollection, and which in this emblematic and imperishable form, associating the present with the past, may be cherished by you as a fitting memorial of both.

Accept this gift, Mr. Harley, as a token—but not as expressing the measure of our regard—and should you experience the same gratification in receiving it that the gentlemen whom you see around you have in its presentation, you will have fully reciprocated the compliments of the Commercial Club.

RESPONSE.

At the conclusion of the foregoing remarks Mr. Harley arose, evidently surprised, and with a voice slightly tremulous with emotion replied in a neat and characteristic speech, in which he said: "Gentlemen, if I should say I was deeply thankful for the manner in which I have been treated this evening, I would but feebly express my feelings upon this occasion I appreciate your kindness, your compliment and friendship expressed to-night, and am more than thankful, more than proud at this magnificent ovation. Few invidnals are complimented as I have been to-night, and if I have ever done anything deserving of any return at your hands I have been much more than repaid by the triumph of to-night. You have exceeded my most vivid imagination, and this gift is a fitting emblem of your regard which I esteem so highly. I must thank you again, and also the gentleman to whose taste and skill it owes its beauty. Some live in the future and others in the past, but in my life there will be no brighter spot than this evening, and I am under deep obligations to all for the uniform courtesy and kindness you have extended to my friends from abroad as well as myself."

The band here struck up the familiar battle-song of the Club, known as "Pipe-Line Harley," and the speaker sat down amid loud and continuous cheers.

REGULAR TOASTS.

The following regular toasts were then offered:

Our Guests. Response by Hugh J. Hastings, of the New York Commercial Advertiser, who, amid loud applause, made a handsome and witty speech, setting forth "the embarrassment he felt at being called upon for a speech, when so many other distinguished guests were present, gentlemen from the confines of the earth—from Boston." The speaker said he had been roaming all day with "oil creek suckers," as they had been termed, and petroleum sharks; he had also met with Barber-ous treatment at the hands of one, and felt like the Aborigines from Titusville, who, while sauntering down Broadway, was attracted by a lively anthem being played in Trinity Church, and who, upon being invited in by the sexton, replied: "No, I thank you; I don't dance." He (the speaker) was in the same boat; he didn't speechify. He had rather face a park of artillery, or a scolding woman, than the assemblage present. He had arrived early, and the moment he arrived in the city, discovered that he had entertained a wrong idea of the oil region. He had supposed it a howling wilderness, filled with barbarians seeking oil and to make money the best way they could. But he found a hotel that would do credit to any city, and upon being seated at the breakfast table two large and ably edited newspapers were spread before him, as well-filled with news as the metropolitan dailies. A community that could support two papers like these, could not help being prosperous." He saw the elegant residences, the school houses and the people, the latter looking prosperous and happy, and his mind was still further impressed with the idea that he had entertained an erroneous opinion of this region heretofore. In conclusion he would state that he had never met a more intelligent or cultivated people and was glad he had seen them, and

If it had not been for Harley,
He would Har(d)ly have been here.

The inhabitants of this section hold the great controlling elements of the country; iron, coal, and petroleum, and in Henry Harley he saw a fair type of the young men of the country, types of American character, energetic, go-a-head, spirited men.

The Erie Railroad—Respond to by Mr. Buck, of Buffalo.

who said, "Unlike my predecessor, I am prepared, as you see, with a cord or so of manuscript. Upon my arrival in town this morning, I was informed that I should be called upon to respond to the toast just given. I regret my inability to properly acknowledge the compliment, and that Col. Fisk is not here to tell you in his characteristic manner all about the Erie Railroad and its relations with your great California of the east. I know that Messrs. Fisk and Gould fully appreciate the importance of the business of this section, and you know they have been educated and kept alive to its advantages by Mr. Harley, whose policy they adopt and execute. I suppose that you, in common with most people who read the papers, have become interested in the question as to whether the management of the Erie are negotiating to sell themselves out of control of the road

I can state positively that no arrangement is contemplated whereby the policy of the road will be changed, and can assert that the public will hereafter as heretofore receive the benefits guaranteed by its position as an independent and competing line.

Now about our Harry. What shall we say of him with his pipes, tanks, refineries, oil cars, railroads and other enterprises that he controls with his active mind.

We all know him and rejoice in him as our friend, and I am glad to be here to-night to see his handsome face lighted with happiness when he contemplates the honor done him at your hands. He is worthy of it all and we should cherish him in our hearts, for we meet few such men in a life-time. That he may never experience ingratitude or disappointment, and live long to be the joy and pride of his family and friends, I know is the heartfelt wish of every one here to-night.

The Pennsylvania Railroad. Responded to by George K. Anderson.

It is with pride and pleasure that I rise to respond briefly to the sentiment just given.

The history of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the last ten years is most intimately interwoven with the history of the Commonwealth, and now its expansive policy is felt from the great marts of commerce on the Atlantic coast, westward through all the intervening States to the Father of Waters, and thence still toward the setting sun, traversing the Plains and climbing the Rocky Mountains to the Salt Lake Basin. In the South its progress and influence is now being felt clear to the Gulf, and from the Southwest it practically controls the trade and travel from the mouth (delta) of the Mississippi. It would be but idle bombast thus to speak of its expansive policy, were it not that I can say with assurance of cordial and general approval, that wherever its management has been felt, there has thrift, progress and substantial prosperity followed in its track. It stands to-day confessedly a model of administration, skill, energy and fidelity.

But it is of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company within its original sphere that I wish more especially to speak. While it has accomplished vast results in the line of natural progress, its special and marked advantages are felt in the States that created it. It is now not only the great artery of commerce and trade in Pennsylvania, but it controls and is ever creating, all needful tributaries to gather the hidden wealth of our hills and valleys and send it out in the great centres of trade. In war it was the great artery of our National life. In peace it is the chief parent of the growth of our development and wealth. Under the inspiration of its policy our corporate interests have so grown that our real estate is now free from taxation, and our debt is being diminished rapidly. Nor has its influence been confined solely to the progress of railroads. The rapid development of our wealth, stimulated in legitimate channels of energy, has diffused the inspiration of progress through all the various avenues in which industry seeks requital, and progress has become the policy of the State, and stamped its benificent impress upon all the pursuits of our people. At first it had the rugged, stubborn prejudices of a large class of our citizens to combat, but as its advantages grew daily more and more apparent, gradually the sentiment of the State has advanced until the people are now in sincere and cordial union with the policy of the company that added more than all other corporations combined to the honest advancement and prosperity of Pennsylvania.

The Union and Titusville Railroad—Responded to by Joshua Douglas, who, in a neat and happy speech, spoke of the difficulties met and overcome in the construction of that line of road, of the benefits it conferred upon Titusville, whose interests it furthered by competing with other lines, though in a friendly spirit, and without seeking anything save the advancement of the oil region and city of Titusville itself.

The Oil Creek and Allegheny River Railroad was then pledged in a bumper, after which Mr. Pitcairn responded in an impromptu speech, in which he said: "It is not necessary to speak of the past history of this road, as it was familiar to nearly all present, and the interests of the road itself were very closely identified with those of many gentlemen present. What it had done for Titusville and the oil region was well known." Mr. Pitcairn's remarks were received with rapturous applause, which bespoke the popularity to which the Oil Creek & Allegheny River Railroad and its officials has attained.

The City of Titusville. Responded to by Mayor Bates.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN: When, a few days ago, I received the note from your committee that I was expected to respond to the toast which has just been announced, I thought to myself: "How fortunate! Now, there are my remarks on the Fourth of July, two years ago; they will do; or the speech at the Harugari pic-nic; that will do; or better than all (because there will be none of that party here), that reply to this same toast at the Good Templars' banquet. But, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I find when I come to dress them up for this occasion I am all at sea. I find the city of Titusville of to-day is not the city of Titusville two years ago. Where then stood this vacant lot, dusty with the charred timbers of the McCray House, now stands this Parshall Block. Where then stood the low, rickety buildings adorned by Holly's sign of the coffin, now stands yonder the three-story substantial Fertig Block. Where then stood the old frames inviting a general conflagration, now are the two brick blocks of Chase & Stewart. Hundreds of lots vacant then, are now dotted all over with fine residences and occupied by thriving citizens. A banking capital then of $425,000; now we have $1,600,000 bank deposits; refining capacity then of 1,500 barrels, now 9,000 barrels. An old greasy passenger depot then, now one not only comfortable but elegant. One railroad then to carry our passengers and freight, now we have two and plenty of business to encourage the building of another. Looked upon then by the outside world with suspicion and distrust, and not entitled to credit, now we are put down in Dunn's Reporter "good for an unlimited amount." Then we went abroad to be saluted with the terms 'mushroom," "shoddy," "bogus;" now, the welcome is, "That city of yours is the liveliest and most thriving place I know of outside of New York, and that Commercial Club can't be excelled even there; do come and dine with us." Such, Mr. C., is a slight glimpse of Titusville as she appears to-night with her metropolitan, well-lighted fronts, her crowded streets, the clatter of her machine shops not—even at this late hour of the night—died away, unless it be that they have shut down for this special occasion. Yonder printing presses (not of the age of Faust and Guttenberg), but of this age of steam and electricity, throwing off their editions for our morrow's breakfast-table, giving us the latest telegrams from Antwerp, Liverpool and Paris, thereby recording events three hours before they ever happened (and some that never will happen.) Telling us now of the Connecticut election, gone Democratic and now Republican. How the investigating committee finding gross frauds perpetrated by one party and now by the other. How the Erie ring, at last broken, and Fisk and Gould brought to grief, and how that same ring an unlimited controlling power, and all the country (and especially our English neighbors) wondering how long they can go un hung. Such is Titusvile to-day as compared with only two or three years ago.

Now, sir, go back with me to the primeval age in her history; to the time "when man knoweth not to the contrary;" (and still not more than fifteen years ago) to the time when the wild fox dug his hole on yonder hill-side unscared, save by the song of the lumberman as he floated his raft down the waters of Oil Creek and the Allegheny to Pittsburg and Cincinnati. When Titusville was but a hamlet nestled in this valley with a population of 300 or 400, and with one or two stores and a hotel to supply the scanty demand of the surrounding country. Such was Titusville then, and so it continued until the immortal Drake awoke the solitude by bringing up from the hitherto hidden recesses of mother earth, a product which to-day, as a crude material, reaches $25,000,000 per year. A product confined to this region, and still an article of commerce for the whole civilized world. Then commenced the age of "carpet-baggers"—a motley throng—men of every station—some adventurers, some confidence men, some gamblers, but among that medley crowd of immigration came with their families the cool, cautious, clear-headed New England men, the energetic practical, business New Yorker, and the man of broad, comprehensive and liberal ideas from Ohio and the West. These formed the nucleus of civilization for this carpet-bag period, having enough business of their own to attend to no one had any time to waste meddling with the business of his neighbor. All contributed generously to build churches and school houses, irrespective of sect. Wholesome laws were enacted irrespective of party. Through their exertions railroads were built and pipe lines introduced. Our guest to-night was the pioneer of the latter, and I wish to say right here that I recognize that pipe line as one of the greatest civilizers of our city. True, it was a bitter contest for a time between labor and labor-saving machinery, and at first the former was the popular side. To throw a population of 2,000 laborers out of employment just because a labor-saving machine could do the same work at one-fifth the cost, would not do. A living these 2,000 men must have, and that they demanded; so the unequal struggle went on. Our friend Harley, single handed against them all, and against the general sympathy of the whole community. For all reasoned that this infernal labor-saving machine was going to drive a large share of our population away. If the laborers left the merchants, hotel-keepers and saloon-keepers would have to leave too, and no one would be left in this whole oil region except a few producers and two or three hirelings to turn the stopcocks of Harley's pipe line. But as is always the case the labor-saving machine came out victorious. Then some 2,000 laborers, many of them left their vocation and went up higher; some of them became oil producers and made fortunes, and are to-day the patrons of this same pipe line that took from them their means of subsistence. Some formed joint stock petroleum companies, and sold their stock to men abroad who would have it. Nearly all changed their location and found employment a degree higher in the scale of civilization, and are to-day among our best citizens.

I might go on, Mr. Chairman, and point out what I choose to term the various civilizers that have have helped to mould the carpet-bag-age of our city into the substantial form she assumes to-night, but I have said too much already for an after dinner speech. Many others I would like to mention, who have contributed in some way to build up our city, but I must conclude by saying to all such, that the City of Titusville is not unmindful of the least of her benefactors, and she is able to say to any and all of them to-night, here are the ten talents you have loaned me, "behold I have made for you ten other talents besides."

The Oil Regions—Responded to by Major A. C. Hawkins

in a few brief and appropriate remarks, setting forth the value of the producing interests to the country at large, "yielding as it did a revenue of twenty-five million dollars annually. Though Mr. Harley first inaugurated the system of pipe line transportation, there was another who had passed away, a Mr. Carey, who was really the pioneer "oil transporter," for he used to sling two five gallon jugs of "crude" over his saddle and tote it to Pittsburgh, where he traded it for dry goods and groceries."

The Oil Refiners

was the next regular toast upon the programme, but was not responded to, as Mr. Hinkley, who should have responded, was absent.

The Press—Response by C. C. Leonard from copious notes supplied by Horace Greeley, Esq., before he left for Texas, as follows: During the past six years in which the HERALD has had the pleasure of recording the more important events connected with the history of Titusville and the oil region, there has occurred nothing of a social character more deserving of record than the event which has assembled those present to-night. It does not need the aid of the press to perpetuate the memory of an occasion like this. The members of the Commercial Club and invited guests who participated in the delightful re-union tendered by President Harley at New York, in January last, will not forget it nor fail to carry the remembrance of that occasion with them through life, and that the present moment will prove one to which he will refer with equal pleasure no one can doubt. But there are others, not members, but warm personal friends of the Club, who expect through the medium of the daily press to be made acquainted with the details of this most enjoyable occasion. It has often fallen to the city press to notice at times various events of local and general interest in which the members of the C. C. played important parts, representing as they do every pursuit and branch of industry peculiar to the region. Among the more noticeable of the former were the original "Harley pipe line," since multiplied by scores of similar methods of oil transportation throughout the region. The Union & Titusville Railroad and the establishment of several first-class banking houses in this city and elsewhere, the present occasion, though of a strictly social character, was quite as worthy of record, and that the press would fully do justice to the club and its friends upon this and future occasions there is no doubt.

Brief speeches followed by Mr. Tack, of the firm of Tack & Lowe, of Oil City, and A. R. Williams, of this city, after which Hugh J. Hastings, "the distinguished Albanian," introduced J. W. Aborn, of Boston, as the oldest railroad conductor in America, who, scorning prose, plunged at once into the realms of poesy, and, after a Tennysonian prelude, said:

My friends, I really pleasure find
In being here to-day,
To help a friendly tie to bind,
To help a pipe to lay

Filled not with common pleasure crude,
But flowing free and wide,
With lasting pleasure well imbued,
A friendship ratified.

And to this Club I here confess
My largest tank I'll fill,
And wish that Heaven may always bless
The Club of Titusville.

Here another "Eastern man," fired with poetic frenzy, arose and said:

"If ever this Club should come to want,
I hope it never will,
It is because they've filled his tank
And had to foot the bill."

In reply to a call for Dexter Follett, the President of the Boston Yacht Club, that gentleman arose, and said that he, as a Bostonian, felt a Boston man's pride in the "hub." They had there the strongest east winds, the most rabid antislavery societies, the strongest-minded women, the strongest butter, and other numerous blessings. He was now en route for the west, but was glad he had seen the oil region and its people, for he thought that Boston was the great bead centre heretofore of all that was worth looking at. He felt all the pride that a Bostonian should feel in the "Big Organ." He was pleased with Titusville and its young business men, who have proved that it was not necessary to have one foot in the grave before they could be counted rich, nor date their last stroke of financial success, from their last stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Follett's remarks were pointed and pithy, and received with applause by those present.

VOLUNTEER TOASTS.

Mr. Hastings called for Col. Pitcher, suggesting that the Commercial Club had its "Pitcher" as well as its "Bowl." Col. Pitcher responded amid warm applause. He said he had not been notified by the toast-master that anything would be expected of him on this occasion and felt that he had completed his labors before the banquet was served. He had had the good fortune to act throughout this affair as the Club "artist on the spot," having received a carte blanche from the association, and having spent one month in New York perfecting the design of the testimonial, he thought the "bowl" as well as the Pitcher, ought, under the circumstances, to speak for itself. Further, on the present occasion, the pitcher was too full for utterance, and he begged therefore to be excused.

Mr. Fuller, of New York, was called as the baggage-master of Gotham. He said that like Pitcher he was too full for utterance. He referred to these pleasant reunions as unfrequent, and the more enjoyable on that account. He had been twice the recipient of favors from the Commercial Club through its President, and was very happy to see him the subject of so handsome a testimonial. He spoke of the superior character of the entertainment, and hoped that the civilities to himself and friends might be some day reciprocated by the Neptune Club of New York.

A. D. Barbour was called, amid warm applause. He said his reflections were silent and his position was silent. He could only respond as a member of a committee, and regretted that none of the speaking, as well as the working members of that committee, were present. If any gentleman outside of the committee could supply the vacancy, he would be glad to hear him speak.

A. H. Bronson was called to speak for the producing interest. He reviewed the oil business and its fluctuations during the preceding five or six years, asserting that the man of nerve and energy who held out against the fearful discouragements of 1865–6–7, had been amply rewarded by the prosperous seasons of 1870 and '71. Oil was now the great commercial staple of the country. It penetrated almost every section of Europe as well as America. He regretted that Mr. Harley, who had been so prominently identified with our petroleum interests should not be more closely allied to us personally than he is at present.

Mr. W. H. Abbott was toasted. He remarked that he was no speaker. He had been associated with Mr. Harley in a business way for years, and could bear testimony to his superior business talents and excellent business qualities.

Captain Dillingham responded to a call, saying that his tank was full, and not having been benzined, he could not be expected to do much talking.

The affair wound up with brief addresses from F. W. Ames, H. F. Sweetzer and others, interspersed with songs of members and music by the band.

The company dispersed at about 1 1-2 o'clock a. m., and the band accompanied by a few members of the club serenaded various citizens.

SITUATION WANTED—

BY AN EXPERIENCED HOSTLER.
Understands his business, can turn his hand to anything, and is temperate and industrous; also accustomed to work in a hotel. References—John Porter, of Porter, Wickham & Co., Titusville, or proprietor Power House, Conneautville.
Address, DANIEL BROWN,

THIS MUST BE READ.

THIS MUST BE READ.

At no time in the history of Titusville could investments in real estate be made with such an absolute certainty of safety, and of sure profit, as at present. Every one is aware that our business depends upon the product of oil, and, to a great extent, on the proximity of the wells to our city.

THIS MUST BE READ.

The present development, just outside of the city, surprises the oldest inhabitant. Of the durability of the wells in the Church Run district, all operators have but one opinion. The street improvements about to be inaugurated, together with the water works, make this not only a desirable place for residence, but establishes Titusville fixedly, as second to no city in America for the business man. Too much cannot be said in praise of Titusville. It is emphatically the headquarters of live business men.

THIS MUST BE READ.

I am authorised to sell property in all parts of the city, some of which is now paying twenty-five per cent. above taxes and all other expenses.

THIS MUST BE READ.

I have also some of the finest oil lands, and leases, on some of the best paying farms in the entire region.

THIS MUST BE READ.

I will sell the royalty in some producing wells; also, the royalty in wells going down close by producing wells. In fact, my latch-string hangs out, and I am prepared to talk business to business men.

married Jones, and consequently she was not guilty of bigamy. Now, according to this view of the case, Jones married a spinster who was a widow at the same time, and another man's wife at the same time, and yet, who had no husband, and never had one, and never had any intention of getting married; and, therefore, of course, never had been married, and by the same reasoning, you are a bachelor, because you have never been any one's husband, and a married man, because you have a wife living; and to all intent and purpose a widower, because you have been deprived of that wife, and a consummate ass for going off to Benecia in the first place, when things were so mixed. And by this time I have got myself so tangled up in the intricacies of this ordinary case, that I shall have to give up any further attempt to advise you—I might get confused and fail to make myself understood. I think I could take up the argument where I left off, and by following it closely awhile, perhaps I could prove to your satisfaction, either that you never existed at all or that you are dead now, and consequently don't need the faithless Edwiths—I think I could do that if it would afford you any comfort.

Miscellaneous.

Beet-root brandy is attracting attention in England.

County jails in Delaware furnish the prisoners with cigars free.

A boy, 10 years old, gorged himself to death, at New London, Conn., last Wednesday, with raisins and chocolate candy.

A resident of New Haven has been imprisoned five days and fined $3 for stealing an umbrella.

One of Philadelphia's mean young men insists that an action against him for breach of promise of marriage, will not hold, because contracts made on Sunday are not binding

A Pittsburgh woman, whose husband fell asleep while she was waiting supper, awoke him by pouring vitriol in his face. She is eating prison fare now, and he is rejoicing in the fact that he can see out of one eye.

The old Presbyterian church at Easthampton, L. I., in which Lyman Beecher preached many of his most noted sermons, has been demolished. It was erected in 1717, but was discarded for a new structure twenty years ago, since which time it has been unused.

An oriole, while building her nest in Rochester, N. Y., on Monday, caught the loose end of a string she was carrying on a twig, and the other end was drawn tightly around her neck. She hung suspended until a gentleman, fortunately seeing the state of things, climbed the tree and extricated the involuntary little suicide.

A disciple of Isaac Walton, who has been trying the trout brooks in New Hampshire, found that the extreme drought of last summer has almost exterminated these beautiful fish. In brooks which formerly gave twenty to forty as the result of an hour's fishing, a half day's labor produces but one or two. He suggests that fishers should hold back for a year or two, and that association be formed to restock the brooks.

A plant in Ceylon has a singular provision for the distribution of its seeds. These are contained in a circular head which is composed of spike-like divisions that radiate in all directions, making a diameter of eight or nine inches. When the seeds are ripe for distribution these spherical heads, with their elastic spines are blown away by the winds and roll swiftly over the level shore for miles, dropping seeds as they go. If they come to water they float easily, and their spines serve as sails, so that they can cross estuaries. A plant valuable for taking root in the sand, and protecting the shores from erosion, is thus widely distributed, as it could not be in any other way in a barren birdless region.

In Rensselaer county, N. Y., a young man has come to grief. Unfortunately, while wooing, one day last week, the young lady who had won his heart's affections, and settling the preliminaries of their expected marriage, he rashly remarked that the union would be peculiarly advantageous to her, because he moved in much better society than she. And then up sprang that insulted female. Seizing a huge carving-knife from the table, she went for that young man, and the youth went for the door. He had her arrested for assault, and the engagement has been broken off.

A curious evidence of the community spirit was shown the other day in a proposition made by Citizen Pyat, at a meeting of the Paris Commune, to circulate the Journal Officiel, official paper of the Commune, gratuitously among the citizens. As a sort of compromise, it was finally resolved to reduce the price of the paper from three cents to one cent, and to post it extensively. As the Journal is published with the "Republic" funds, the Commune was wise enough to perceive that the gratuitous circulation system, as proposed, would have beggared its treasury in a very short time.

Seven Hundred Tons of Ice

Not figures, but ice, and intends not to be undersold. Spring ice will be sold from three-fourths to one cent per pound; Creek ice from forty to fifty cents per one hundred pounds. Parties wishing ice by the ton will be supplied at liberal rates I will deliver ice now at any time that parties desire it. All persons commencing with the first of the season will be carried through if there is any ice to be had this side of Buffalo. As this is supposed to be a free country, I have taken this method to inform the public that I have the ice. It is now for them to select the man to furnish them. This thing of drumming and harassing a man at every point and corner to take ice is an insult to a free man and an outrage to humanity. Office first door east of L. P. THE DIAMOND GLASSES,

MANUFACTURED BY

J. E. SPENCER & CO., N. Y.,

WHICH ARE NOW OFFERED TO

the public, are pronounced by all the celebrated Opticians of the world to be the MOST PERFECT Natural, Artificial help to the human eye ever known. They are ground under their own supervision from minute Crystal Pebbles, melted together, and derive their name "Diamond," on account of their hardness and brilliancy. THE SPECTATIVE PRINCIPLE on which they are constructed brings the core or center of the lens directly in front of the eye, producing a clear and distinct vision, as in the natural, healthy sight, and preventing all unpleasant sensations, such as flickering and wavering of sight, dizziness, etc., peculiar to all others in use. They are Mounted in the Finest Manner, in frames of the best quality of all materials used for that purpose. Their Finish and Durability cannot be surpassed.

CAUTION—None genuine unless bearing this trade mark stamped on every frame.
